Lighthouse of the orcas true story

The true story behind the lighthouse of the orcas. Is the lighthouse of the orcas based on a true story.

 During the pandemic, the films gave me pleasure and comfort. Â The streaming services and library offer a lot of treasures and one can be selective. Â My tastes are probably not exactly the same as yours, but there are also points in common. Â «The Orche Lighthouse», available on Netflix is very moving. Â a certain importance. Â With a real natural theme that will resonate with most human beings. A trip to Nova Scotia and a few hours on a cruise to whale observation are very beautiful memories. Â The film offers a more intimate view of killer whales. Â The portagonist based on the life of Roberto «Beto» Bubus who physically contacted and played with whales. Â The part of the killing is short and perhaps brutal, but also natural when whales come to shore and kill a sea lion. Â Beto loves seals and sea lions and rides a horse. The film begins with a mother who brings the Autistic son of 11 years from Spain to the Argentine region of Patagonia, based on a naturalistic video that aroused his son. Â The lighthouse guard, forced to have no physical contact with whales, does not collaborate much with the desire of his mother. He decides to seek autism and changes his mind. However, his boss is irrepressible in not allowing any physical contact between the boy and whales. Â There is a threat of dismissal. It aims to conquer the boy and it is small steps that go in the right direction. Â But she resists for fear of being abandoned as her husband did. Â While progressing with the boy and with relationships, the father in Spain advances undeniable legal demands. Autism is realistically represented. The boy mostly has an empty look, except that disturbed by noise and other children. Â When he's happy, he moves his fingers. Â The whales draw his attention and he responds by following how Beto draws the whale's attention by beating on the water. Â He then shows interest in the care of a horse. Â In fact, Beto continued working with other autistic children demonstrating that natural therapy often helps autistic children. Â Gerardo Olivares, a writer and director born in Spain, had traveled Pascal Gaigne, author of music. Â Born in France, lives and works in Spain. Â The winner of the film. Â One of the key features of this work was film production. Â Mostly shot in a remote area of Argentina. The real subject of the film, Roberto «Beto» Bubas wrote the book of his experiences that is the basis of the film and participated with a role of stunt. Born in Spain, he starred in Spain, Mexico and Argentina. She made television spots before entering the age of 13.
